

Alex Wild

Natural History and the Digital Photography Revolution

Alex Wild began photographing insects in 2002 as a complement to his scientific work on ants. His work has been featured in numerous works from museums to television programs, such as The New York Times, National Geographic, Discovery Channel, Ranger Rick, and the Smithsonian. Join us as he speaks about his work and the importance of photography to science.

11:00am - March 29, 2018

Hosted by GEES

US Bank Conference Theater, Ohio Union, The Ohio State University
1739 N High Street, Columbus, OH 43210 (Parking Garage next door)